I dunno if anyone could help me with this, if so I would really. I just got a 2nd hand 1000F today. Im just having one problem with it. When there is film in the camera, I cant seem to turn it off!! I turned the dial to the L position, but the LCD display was still showing the info. Once the roll of film was finished and removed, then I put the dial to the L position, and the info on the LCD screen disappeared, so I presume the camera is now switched off. So, by the look of it, when there is film in the camera I cannot turn it off This cant be right, suppose I only want to use half a roll of film then keep the rest in the camera till next weekend or whatever the battery would be dead by then!! And its not even a rechargeable and Im not 100% sure if the 2CR5s are easy to get here in Ireland. So. can anyone tell me if this is normal on the 1000F or not. I dont wanna go back to the shop and start moaning if this is how it should be, although I cant imagine any reason WHY it should be like this!! Thanks a mill guys for any advice. You still get a film symbol and the number of shots left displayed when its off and in the L position. Maybe its normal then. Just wanted to double check as I didnt get the manual either. That link seems to be the only online info available, I checked it out, thanks. I know you say youve only had your camera for a month, but how are you finding the battery. Have you left film in it for any length of time and has the battery worn down at all because the display is left on. Im just thinking, LCD displays like that use very little energy as far as I know. Maybe Im worrying over nothing huh. Thanks for the reply Windy. Glad to have found the group Daz, been a great help already. Thanks for the advice Daz and Windy. Mine had one battery for years and it still worked. It may not display this or other websites correctly. You should upgrade or use an alternative browser.
